

EL PASO CHAPTER OF RED CROSS HAS WORK TO DO AFTER CHRISTMAS AND NEEDS HELP; SERVICE BADGES ARE TO BE AWARDED TO THE WORKERS

THE El Paso chapter of the Red Cross has from the first call responded generously. Mrs. Horace Broadbent, chairman of women's work of the chapter, announces that the work in the Red Cross rooms in the White House will be suspended until after the holidays in order that busy housewives may be enabled to prepare for the Christmas season. "After the holidays," said Mrs. Broadbent, "there is still much to be done. The allotment of refugee garments is large and there is also a large allotment of knitted garments to be done. These women have been faithful workers, sparing neither time nor effort to do all in their power in the cause of humanity and I ask now that all remain faithful until the end."

The surgical dressing department was discontinued some time ago, no further need for it being required. "If a number of mends and maitresses will respond to the call and help with the refugee garments and the knitting, the work will not fall heavily on a few shoulders but may easily and quickly be accomplished and the garments speeded on their way to bring warmth and comfort to sufferers from the great war."

Mrs. Broadbent has been appointed by the national organization as chairman of the awarding committee of El Paso. Her assistants will be appointed in a short time. To this committee will come the pleasure of awarding service badges to the men and women of El Paso who have done as much as 400 hours of Red Cross work beginning in April, 1917, and continuing until the present time. To those who have done more than this amount of work, but in proportion to the amount accomplished will be added to the badge. "This badge," said Mrs. Broadbent, "will be a pride to the wearer, to their children and to descendants for generations to come, for it is a symbol of honor that the owner has worked in the cause of humanity, faithfully and efficiently."

Mrs. Broadbent desires that records of work be sent to her as early as possible in order that the awards may be facilitated. These badges will be awarded for consecutive work, for instance one day each week $1.00 for a period of 16 months, two days each week for a period of 12 months, three days each week for a period of eight months or four days

El Paso Entertainers Give A Program For the Soldiers Stationed At Ysleta

Piano solo, Miss Gusta Fahrenkamp, who also was the accompanist for the evening. The officers present were Lieut. R. O. Wright and his wife and Lieut. E. S. Jones. Other guests included Miss Iona Johnson, Miss Mary Lou Smith, Mrs. A. L. Peterson and Mrs. Frank Howard. The entertainers were chartered by T. M. C. A. secretary and Mrs. G. A. Graham.

Church Women Want Early Saturday Closing

Women of the El Paso churches have started a league for the purpose of bringing about early Saturday closing. Two women are to be appointed from each church in the city to bring about the change, if it is possible. Present plans contemplate making the stores to close at 1 o'clock on Saturday afternoon, instead of 9 o'clock as at present. The idea is to give the women employees a chance to rest Saturday afternoon and evening so they will not be too tired on Sunday to attend church and participate in religious matters.

Parties.

On Saturday evening the Wilson home on North Stanton street will be the scene of a pretty Christmas party when Miss Olive Wilson will entertain in honor of a number of officers and enlisted personnel of the navy and army service who are home for the holidays. She will be assisted in receiving and entertaining by Miss Mabel Shea and Miss Jessie Darrach and the guest list will include guests from both civilian and army circles.

Dinners and Luncheons.

A dinner party at the Country club this evening will include Miss Dorothy Smith, Miss Frances Smith, Miss Nellie May Bowen, Miss Elizabeth Stevens, Capt. C. G. Hutchinson, Lieut. H. Barnhart, Lieut. G. H. Bowers and Lieut. C. E. Craig.

Pupils of El Paso School For Girls Are To Give A Happy Christmas Play

THE El Paso School for Girls, in Austin Terrace, is the scene this afternoon of the Christmas play presented by the pupils of the school. The little pupils of the primary department and the lower intermediate department are going to present a group of dances picturing Christmas with "Mother Goose."

The familiar "Mother Goose" characters will lead these dances. Katharine Cole will represent Mother Goose; Betty Hawkins will be Little Jack Horner; Mary Josephine Evans will represent Taffy; the Welshman; Myrtle Theisen, Peter, Peter, Pumpkin Eater; Lorraine Cronin, My Pretty Maid; Margaret May McNary, the old woman who lived under the hill; Besse Levenson, the woman from France; Esther Calvert Pickett, Polly put the Kettle On; Edith Anne Wallhall, Queen of Hearts; Anita Andrews, Bobby Buns; Marylou Benton, Mary, Mary, Quite Contrary; Marjorie Harris, Little Miss Muffet; Florence Berg, the Little Girl Who Had a Little Cur; James Bull, Wee Willie Winkie; Mignon Pickrell, Little Bo Peep; Elsie Tankersley, Nancy Lindcott; Arlene Talbot, Sun Bonnet Sue; Sarah Butler, Baby Bunting; Frances Wallace, Jack; Helen Benton, Jill; Frances Davis, The Old Woman From Harrow; Virginia Kirkpatrick, Little Boy Blue; Wilma Carruso, Old King Cole; Elsie Cogan, Little Tommy Tucker; Bettie Alley, Tom, Tom, the Piper's Son. The older girls of the intermediate department will give a little mystery play, "The Christmas Guest." Miss Marion Turner will give the prologue, the characters to be Eula May Corgan as Dame Margaret; Elizabeth Dancy as Frances; Claire Tizard as Jocelyn; Margaret Palm as Jeoffrey; Catherine Phillips as Harold; Julie Hawkins as Rosamund; Laura Tate, the Angel.

That the little tots at the day nursery are going to receive a share of Christmas cheer is evidenced by the donations being sent in by philanthropic El Pasoans. All persons wishing to add to the happiness of the little ones may communicate with Mrs. W. G. Roe, chairman of the nursery. The girls at the El Paso School for Girls are going to decorate the Christmas tree for the happiness of the little ones and will fill 45 seashore pails with good things to eat as a further contribution. The donations already sent in include the Guarantee Shoe company, two boxes of toys; the El Paso School for Girls, three boxes of clothing and one of groceries and fruit; Robert Krakauer, two rugs for the nursery floor; Mrs. C.
